Bizonia—No Romance

Steamer Leaves

Oil-Burner Cold

There's a new name in the news—Bizonia.

And if you were to let your imagination run a bit, it might warm your heart this cold day with the thought that maybe here is another of those magical countries of romance that follows like the George Barr McCutcheon used to dream up.

McCutcheon dreamed up Graustark in 1901 as a European kingdom where people were kind to Americans. And America just lived it—just loved to read about Graustark.

But this is 1948, and Bizonia is no kingdom, and the people of Bizonia don't like Americans—and Americans don't like to read about Bizonia either.

And since there's no romance and no novelist to tell the story maybe I'd better explain what Bizonia is.

It's the British-American zone (bi-zone meaning double zone) of Berlin, which our countries are preparing to merge in a single zone. And Russia doesn't like it.

That's life for you McCutcheon dreams up an imaginary land and everybody loves it—Bizonia is a real land, and a pain in the neck.

You know there's a race on the Mississippi river between two work-a-day tugs, both coming up from New Orleans toward Memphis with individual loads of four barges carrying 10,000 tons of sugar.

One is the steam tug Kokoda, the other the diesel-engined Helona.

I'm not an impartial observer; in this instance, for I'm frankly glad to report that last dispute indicate the steam tug Kokoda is well ahead of the diesel Helona.

Nowadays everything is running away from steam power and toward the diesel. But in a ship where weight is of less consequence than on land, steam seems to be winning.

And it's about time. For some where in technical research there still must be a large place for steam, especially since the trend to diesel power with its restricted fuel field is steadily shortening our precious supply of petroleum. May the best tugboat win—so long as it's a steamer!

Washington English

When President Truman was a senator, he got some good training in deciphering involved English. Like all congressmen, he had to read a lot of bills, and he must have reached the point where he could ferret the sense out of their maze of language without much trouble.

So he probably understood the latest report of his Council of Economic Advisors. But it is a safe bet that a lot of his fellow citizens didn't—even though Washington reporters took pains to spell out its meaning in their news stories. And that is a pity, for the Council has something interesting to say on an important subject.

The three-man board has been studying inflation and high prices and figuring out how they can be checked. The learned gentlemen seem to have done some sound and clear thinking. But when they came to put thoughts into words, the clarity vanished. Perhaps they feel, as many do, that the reader won't believe they take their work seriously if they write their opinions in simple sentences.

The Council's report wasn't nearly as fogbound as a lot of Washington English. But it wasn't something to make man with the greater bill blues yell, "Hey, look! It's even too high prices."

Instead, the Council gave us things like this: More and more production "will simply advance the time when we shall have to face the problem of what price, income, and property value adjustments have to be made to strike an internally consistent or stable equilibrium." And, "It seems clear that in reaching this equilibrium many industrial prices must come down at least in relation to other prices."

We got hung up on that one, as a good many other readers must have. What is the difference between industrial prices coming down and coming down at least in relation to other prices? Don't they come down in either case? Does it mean that industrial prices must come down while non-industrial prices stay up? Or vice versa? Or

"Many rates of profits must subside," says the report, while reasonable profitability is established in other areas?" We take that to mean that some companies' or industries' profits are too big, and others' too small—so something should be done to lower the first group's profit rates and raise those of the second. We guess that's it, but we aren't sure.

Now try this one for size: "Maintenance of a state of production, once it has been reached, is absolutely inconsistent with the use of monopolistic control to enact for any organization or unit a more favorable distributive position than

Texarkana Labor Trial Underway in Local Court

Lee Matlin, of Lynchburg, Va., Owen Bolen of Dora, Ala., and Fred Thomason of Springfield, Ill., organizers for the AF of L United Mine Workers District 50, went on trial here today on charges of violating Arkansas' anti-violence labor law.

Three other men, all negroes, Ed Washington, Eugene Seastrom and Andrew Weaver also will be tried.

The union organizers are charged with whipping a Negro worker after he had crossed a picket line at the strike-bound Texarkana Cotton Oil Co. plant, October 6.

The negroes are charged with attempting by threats to prevent another Negro from working in the mill.

The case was transferred to Hempstead Circuit Court following a "sampling" of public opinion in Miller County, which was declared to be "inflamed."

The jury was selected this morning and trial got underway about 10 a.m. Jurors were: Losie Bostwell, Otto Sims, R. E. Arnold, Phillip Ward, K. F. Radley, W. C. Griffin, Harry Hawthorne, Elmore Martindale, George Crews, Monroe Kent and Sam Roach.

Testimony of witnesses is now being heard. Judge Dexter Bush is presiding.

Henry Phillips pleaded guilty to grand larceny and was sentenced from 2 to 5 years. He stole a car here in December from Andrew (Speedy) Hudson.

Richard Wilson and Robert Hall, both minors, pleaded guilty to grand larceny and were given a 1 to 3 year suspended sentence.

They were implicated in the theft of $45 from a local service station.

At third man implicated in the service station affair, G. W. Rochelle, was given a year in the penitentiary.

James Glenwood Jackson, caught by police inside Stuckey's Store, pleaded guilty to burglary and received a 2 year sentence.

Bennie W. Eichberger, the Missouri Sykes and Horace McConnell, all negroes pleaded guilty to grand larceny and sentenced to two years each. They stole a car here owned by C. E. Wimberly.

Court Affirms Manslaughter Sentence

Little Rock, Jan. 19 — (P)—The seven-year sentence of Odell Ramick, 37, of Stuttgart convicted in Pulaski Circuit Court on a charge of voluntary manslaughter for killing his former wife, Emma Dell Alley, was affirmed by the supreme court today.

As usual, Laney managed to keep friends and political enemies alike guessing right to the last. With adeptness unusual in a "non-political businessman" Laney set the stage with a masterful hand.

Many observers were willing to "bet" that he would not seek the elusive third term.

Others pointed to three self-titled "major speeches" which he made in western Arkansas last week—an appeal for tax relief, a speech on the future of the state and a speech on the future of the country.

"3. That the countries of Europe—as many as are willing—band themselves into a political, economic and defense union under the United Nations. This would include the lowering of trade barriers among them.

"4. That the United States, and such others as will join us, mutually guarantee the nations entering this union against aggression. By guarantee I mean a firm promise to go to war in joint defense if any of them are attacked.

"5. That the European nations organize to liberate and use every productive resource of the continent."

"6. Stabilize all European currencies and establish realistic rates of exchange."

"7. A two year peace production drive in this country—to work for peace as we worked for war—feasible with longer hours and overtime: Where not, to smash production.

Marines Transfer to Carrier in Mediterranean

Valletta, Malta, Jan. 19 — (P)—The United States Navy's biggest peacetime Mediterranean assignment is being carried out here in Malta. The aircraft carrier Midway, which the Aircraft Carrier Midway is taking aboard 1,000 American Marines who arrived yesterday aboard the U. S. auxiliary transports Bexar and Montague.

High ranking American naval officers say the marine reinforcements are here partly to replace men whose tour of duty has expired and partly to increase the marine force available in the Mediterranean against any eventual such as girding American interests in Palestine or Cyrenaica, where the American Air Force is keeping an eye.

It is expected the transfer operations will take until Friday to complete.

Little Rock, Jan. 19 — (P)—Governor Laney announced today that "I will not be a candidate for any office at this time."

Decision by Laney This Afternoon

Little Rock, Jan. 19 — (P)—Gov. Ben T. Laney will make known his future political plans at a state capital news conference soon this afternoon.

The chief executive, appearing at the visit of the Freedom Train, told Little Rock, told a United Press reporter he did not "have time to make any announcement this morning."

Laney said he did not know at exactly what hour he would release his statement but added it would be "sometime in the afternoon."

Listeners in the small audience here heard Laney participate in the Freedom Train ceremony followed by his 15-minute speech carefully, the closest. Laney came to mentioning Arkansas politics was to describe the bottom box as one of the bastions of American Freedom.

Laney and Mayor Sam Wassel of Little Rock officially welcomed the Freedom Train and its crew and personnel to the city and state at the small and informal observance held in the Missouri Pacific station.

The ceremony originally had been scheduled for outdoors near the head of a line of thousands of persons waiting to enter the train, but cold weather drove the dignitaries inside.

As usual, Laney managed to keep friends and political enemies alike guessing right to the last. With adeptness unusual in a "non-political businessman" Laney set the stage with a masterful hand.

Many observers were willing to "bet" that he would not seek the elusive third term.

Baruch Submits Own Plan for Waging Peace

Washington, Jan. 19—(P)—Bernard M. Baruch laid before senators today an 11-point program for "peace-waging" including a "rollback" in food prices, no wage raises and no tax cuts for two years.

Baruch was a witness before the Senate foreign relations committee on the Marshall Plan for multi-billion dollar aid to Europe. He endorsed it, but told the senators:

"Dollars alone will not save Europe nor win the peace."

Baruch then proposed his domestic program, saying "the time has come to organize and mobilize for peace. It cannot be put off safely any longer. The time for courage and decision is here."

These are the major things he proposed in that "mobilization":

1. Reduce major food prices in exchange for guaranteeing farmers an assured price for their crops for the next three years."

2. Stabilized wages in return for this rollback.

3. Restore the excess profits tax at 50 per cent of wartime levels.

4. Continue rent control "with provision only for clearly justifiable increases."

5. Postpone tax reduction for two years and then cut levies gradually over a five-year period.

6. Put off all less essential state and federal public works, giving priority to increasing production, traffic schools, hospitals and other essential needs.

7. Set up a capital issues commission to review all public and private projects "with a view to deterring less essential projects."

8. Establish a congressional "digging committee" which would cut government costs.

9. Increased production.

Baruch an adviser to presidents in two world wars, said the situation "requires a bold, resolute concerted attack against the clawing, tearing of inflation and another world war."

His tax and farm price rollback proposals were only sub-heads for an anti-inflation point of his general program.

The broader program embraced:

"1. The United States stands ready to buy all non-irreducible raw materials produced anywhere and by anyone in the world for the next five years, and which cannot find normal commercial markets x xx 2. Extend the president's present tax authority for the next three years."

"3. That the countries of Europe—as many as are willing—band themselves into a political, economic and defense union under the United Nations. This would include the lowering of trade barriers among them.

"4. That the United States, and such others as will join us, mutually guarantee the nations entering this union against aggression. By guarantee I mean a firm promise to go to war in joint defense if any of them are attacked.

"5. That the European nations organize to liberate and use every productive resource of the continent."

Slightly Warmer Is Forecast for Arkansas

By The Associated Press

It will be slightly warmer in Arkansas Monday night, with light snow for some sections.

The weather bureau forecast light snow for the southwest portion later today (Monday) and for the east and south portions Tuesday.

The cold wave, which brought the lowest readings in 16 years to some sections of Arkansas, began moderating Sunday, after lowest readings dipped to near zero. The lowest minimum this morning (Monday) was 14 degrees above zero at Morrilton. Sunday's lowest was 2 above at Camden.

Other low minimums Monday morning: Monteagle 16, Newport 16, Little Rock, Batesville and Texarkana 22, Harrison 23, Gilbert 25 and Fort Smith 26.

Baruch was a witness before the Senate foreign relations committee on the Marshall Plan for multi-billion dollar aid to Europe. He endorsed it, but told the senators:

BALDNESS "CURE"

American almanacs, as late as 1872, suggested to potential baldheads that they rub the thin spots with an onion and then apply honey as a cure.

CRATER THEORY

A new theory regarding the moon's craters suggests that they may not be the result of meteors or volcanic action, but the moon's surface once was an ancient sea, and the crater formed in tropical seas here on earth.

Here and There in Arkansas

Senath, Mo., Jan. 19.—(UPI)—A 17-year-old Arkansas girl was killed and five others were injured near her, yesterday, when their automobile ran off a road and overturned several times. Dead was Betty Jean Brown of Paragould.

Injured were Don Hooten, 24, Jonesboro, Ark.; Norma Jean Keller, 21, Ottwell; Ask; Charles F. Dunn, 23, Jonesboro; Madeline Mary Cox, 23, Paragould, and James Leon Wilson, Jonesboro.

Little Rock, Jan. 19.—(UPI)—The Arkansas Farm Bureau Cooperative's board of directors has made preliminary plans for the establishment this year of plants for mixing fertilizer, grading cotton and processing seed.

Details for the three plants are to be worked out at the cooperative's annual meeting here Feb. 6-7.

Board President Ralph Hudson, Harrison, said the plants would meet farmers' urgent needs "in those things that go into cost of production."

Little Rock, Jan. 19.—(UPI)—Thirty-eight fatalities resulted from 30 of the 28 traffic mishaps in Arkansas during December, the state police department reported today.

The number of persons injured on the state's highways and streets during the month was 185.

Clinton, Jan. 19.—(UPI)—Sheriff Doyle Casinger said he probably would deliver Lonnie Robbins, Van Buren County farmer charged with first degree murder, to the state hospital at Little Rock today for a mental examination.

Robbins, 44, is accused in the death New Year's Eve of his bride of less than a week, the former Mrs. Sadie Sue Dudley, 32-year-old Abilene, Tex., widow.

Casinger has reported that $720 had been taken by court order from Robbins' mother, Mrs. Jewel Robison, 60, after the sheriff said she said her son had given her the money.

Previously officers said they found $800 and some jewelry in a secret pocket in Robbins' undershorts.

Robbins' Christmas Day bride, who died a few hours after reaching the Robbins farm near Clinton, was reported to have withdrawn $1,350 from a postal savings account following the wedding. An autopsy showed poison in her stomach.

Robbins, who has maintained he was not entirely honest in his political career, which seemed to be glandular rather than cerebral. Not long ago, he was counseling the betrayers with talk of a copy of the "decency" relationship between La Belle France, an amateur and never fastidious bedfellow, and "a dear and powerful Russia." The fault was not entirely his that they ventured home to continue their treachery after the fall of Germany. He lacked authority to bump them off, but he fact should be held against him that he was willing to make politics with the Kremlin, which had given them their orders to take France out of the war.

De Gaulle has lost patience and would adopt a form of continental slavery described as corporatism. It would not be much different from communism, but the Communists would be the special devils and the loyal French would have the legitimate pleasure of butchering a few thousand of them in future riots.

It is unbecoming of an American to criticize De Gaulle, however, because our Roosevelt not only recognized Russia but extended elaborate privileges to many of the most dangerous traitors in the history of the United States. He put two of them into powerful positions on his labor relations board under the Wagner Act, knowing them to be traitors, and by the whole strength of his power maintained hundreds of subordinate sneaks in influential minor positions in the ramifications of the board. By comparison, Benedict Arnold was rather decent. It would be an irreverence to the memory of a great man even to suggest that he did not know his appointees, and their appointees, were traitors, because he knew all. He had a thousand fervorous adherents planted in C. I. O. unions to mock our government and undermine the people's confidence.

We have had no report here of any system of thuggery done in the name of the traitor, or anti-American, branch of the French Federation, corresponding to the American Labor under cover, A. of L. Probably France did have such American correspondents who have lived any time in France, but we have had no report of corruption in such a commonplace of all French life that they didn't think to mention this detail. It seems unlikely that the French equivalent of the American business agent and of the Fays, Brewses and Biots, to mention only a few of Roosevelt's loyal Gauleiters, would have ever overlooked any chance. In our country, we saw Roosevelt's traitors, traitors posing loudly as anti-Communist patriots, smeared by the press.

A coroner's jury, which reached no verdict after first viewing the body yesterday, was scheduled to meet again today.

Hornby was employed in the same attorney's laundry. He is survived by his wife and a daughter.

Magnolia, Jan. 19.—(UPI)—Mrs. D. L. Wilkins, Brister cobbler and tailor, died in a hospital here today, from injuries suffered Saturday night when struck by a truck as she was crossing the highway.

Roosevelt and his captain and carbals beat De Gaulle to it by many years, in a system of nation-state subordination to the party in office. Although the Wagner Act was entitled a law to promote interstate commerce by abating inter-state disputes, actually, the first business of the Labor Relations Board and the wages and hours administration for the next half dozen years was to foment trouble and, wherever possible, to delay needed legislation.

The nation-state idea is too silly for serious consideration, but the collaboration of the union gangsters and the employers is no novelty to Americans. Our big employers learned to like this because the union padres have no sentimental ideas about humanity. They deal in thousands of head of miners, thousands of miners, steam-bill collectors, drivers by numbers rather than names, and all subject to union taxes of which the party naturally takes its share.

All this explains why the Taffy, Roosevelt and New Deal Fascist alike, fanned by the gangster and Comintern, their tank proposals to sweep, unrepresentable unrepresentable masses, into the dustbin of history, did not realize what emanation they had.

Roosevelt's success raised serious doubts that the American citizen can trust in the party naturally.
